DOG = Brandy

We haven't got rooftops all covered with snow, or dog-powered sleds with our children in tow,
Our windows aren't frosty from the wintery winds,
We have joggers and surfers but we have no snowmen.
The carollers we see wear shorts and tee shirts,
The Christmas trees we use have never seen dirt.
Nothing is sacred here anymore,
I mean Santa Claus barefoot! Now that's really poor,
Yes, let's be honest, we dream now and then
About a white Christmas, but then again . . .

We wouldn't be able to go to the beach after we opened our presents, would we?

May you have a warm and joyful holiday.

Love,
John & Betty
